

Mrs. Pigg's 7th grade class read the novel Tangerine and were assigned an Environmental Study Project over a community/place of their choice. The students had to research and prepare a report that included information about certain areas. "They could do a slide show, posters, tri-folds, etc," said Mrs. Pigg. "They had three deadlines throughout the six weeks to meet. They reported their final projects before the class." Students needed to be knowledgeable about their topic as the other students could ask questions.

Characteristics exhibited were resourcefulness, discernment, and synthesizing information. They used technology to aid them in being a life-long learner and they set and achieved goals.
